There are, perhaps, few better places to learn the lessons of life than Lehigh. The hills and stairs are ever-present physical reminders of the challenges we must forever meet - and ultimately surmount.

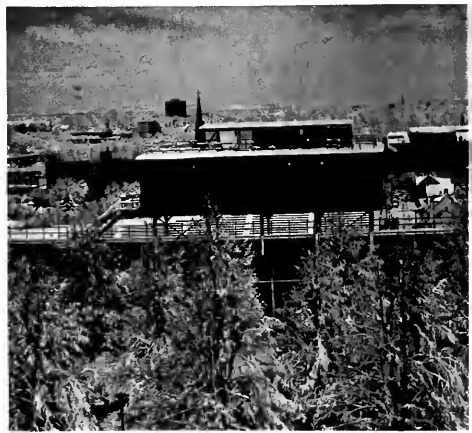

Often, these hills and challenges seem too steep, too demanding. Yet, there is a peace which emanates from the stone walls of the buildings and the broad limbs of the trees—it gives us the strength we need to continue.

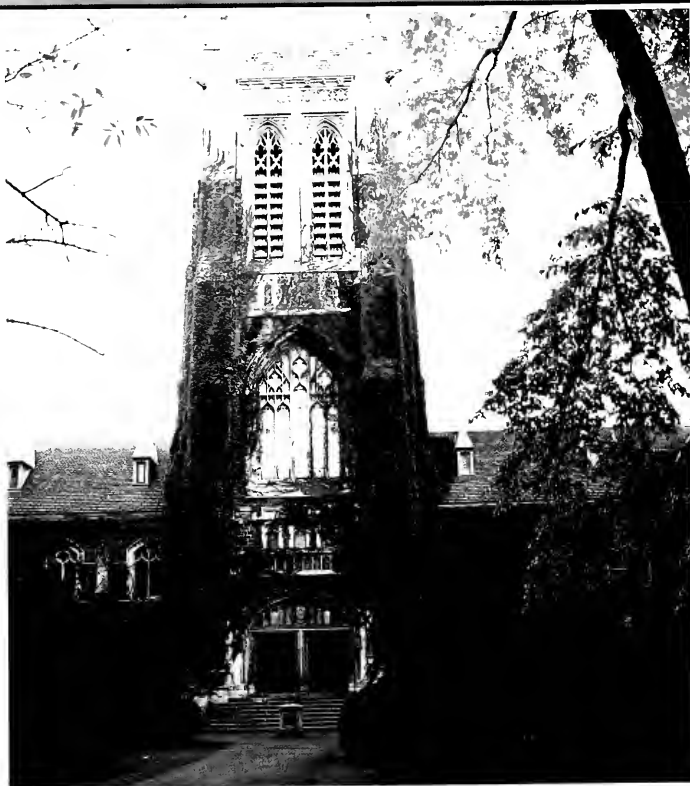

A blend of old and new can be found at our 123 year-old university. Ivy-coated buildings with their "Railroad Gothic" architecture foreshadow the modern library as well as the soon to be built business center. The structures remind us of just how brief our four-year stay was, and that the university will continue to grow long after our Lehigh experience becomes only a memory.

As we race toward the 21st Century, our alma mater continues to change and grow. But underneath its shifting exterior will always be that small, four-year hillside hideaway where we dreamed, learned, loved, hated, laughed and cried.

LEHIGH- LAFAYETTE WEEKEND

The 123rd meeting of
The Lehigh Engineers
The Lafayette Leopards

November 2, 1987

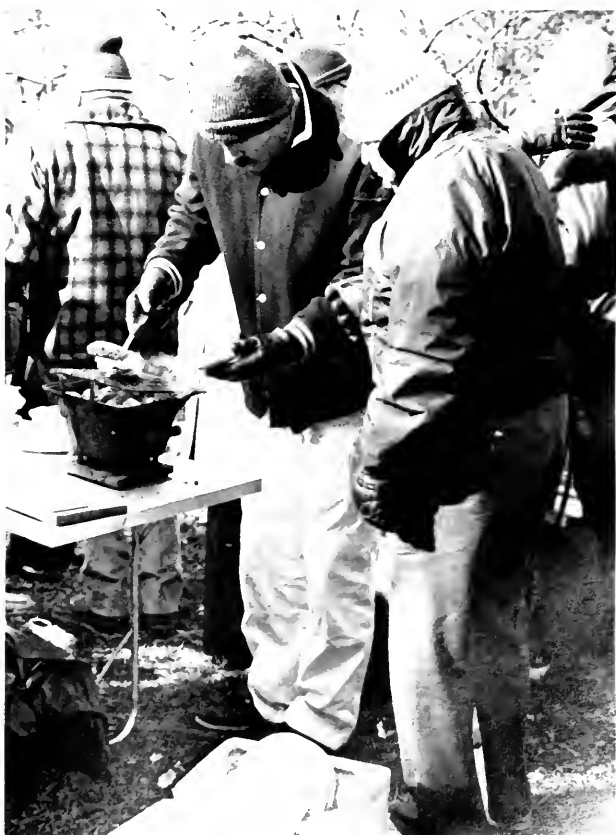

It was the one hundred and twenty third meeting between the rival teams and it was to be the final game in the seventy-four-year-old Taylor Stadium. The teams were well matched: both had had inconsistent and disappointing seasons. Although the victors of this match could not even claim a winning season, they could claim second place in the Colonial League.

The weather was a spectator's nightmare—17 degrees below zero with the wind chill factor. Many escaped the frigid weather and watched the game on television in the warmth of their homes or at Bloomer's. Others resorted to tailgating to keep their minds off the cold, although their frostbitten fingers, incapable of holding their beer cups, were a constant reminder of the sub-zero temperatures.

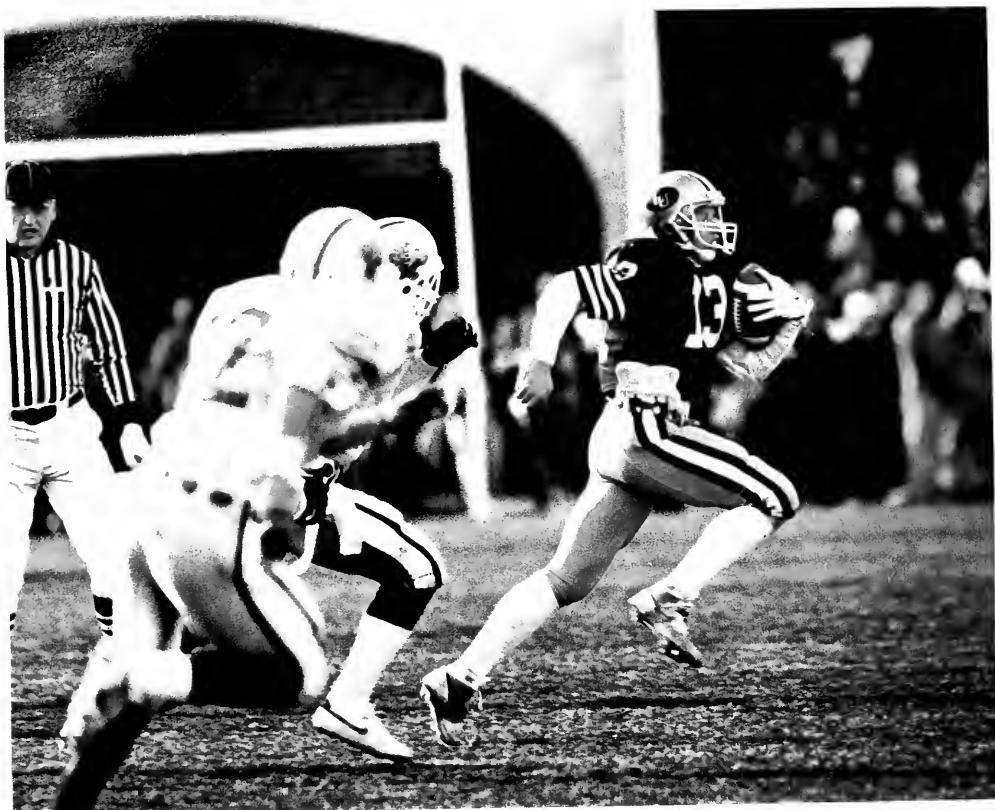

The faithful Lehigh fans who braved the freezing weather were rewarded by the Engineers' 17-10 victory over the Leopards. Lafayette, however, still leads the overall rivalry with a 67-51-5 record.

The fans were eager to take home a piece of the tradition which had come to an end. Demolition of Taylor Stadium was scheduled to begin the Monday after the game but began prematurely during the closing moments of play. Students and alumni stripped the structure of its doors, bleachers, turf, and anything else that could be loosened. The '5' from the fifty yard line was dug up from the turf while others knocked off the LEHIGH letters from the press box. Some dedicated alumni took home the seats they had occupied for every home game since their graduation. For a few, this had been over fifty years of devotion to their alma mater.

Lehigh's Future

Passing The Tradition

Taylor Stadium

1914 - Celebrating 74 Years - 1987

Taylor Gym. And Field

Gymnasium will be ready by January 1 and Stadium will take Care of Game with Lafayette.

... The greatest improvement, however is the new concrete stadium which, when completed as now projected, will cost about $90,000. Built entirely of concrete highly reinforced (the bleacher sections) will represent the greatest degree of safety, durability, and architectural designing. The rows of seats extend from the bottom to the level of the automobile parking space. This space, to be used for the disposal of carriages and automobiles during the game, is bounded on one side by the stadium sections and on the other by the upper field embankment. The driveway leading to the parking space passes through the gymnasium by an arched entrance. Below on the main field the gridiron, and lacrosse and baseball fields are to be situated. In spite of the fact that the field is fairly well leveled it will be regraded to eliminate the inconvenience of mudholes which hitherto have inconvenienced the football squad.

... (It) will be one of the most complete and modern institutions that are present in American colleges today. Charles P. Taylor, to whom Lehigh men are indebted so greatly, spared no thought of expense in his donation toward giving us a gymnasium which will more than meet the needs of our athletes for many years to come. The situation of the field on the slope of the mountain with pleasing architecture of the gymnasium and excellent layout of the stadium and field in general will be a spot that will make all of us proud of being Lehigh men and happy in the thought of being able to make use of it.

... Our whole athletic plant enables us to hold our heads pretty high when we talk with fellows in other college families.

But above all, Mr. Taylor, we thank you because we know the spirit in which your gift was made. It's fine to see that our big brother hasn't been spoiled by success, that he shows there are lots better things than mere money. It's great inspiration to us younger brothers in the Lehigh Family.

The Brown and White
September 26, 1913

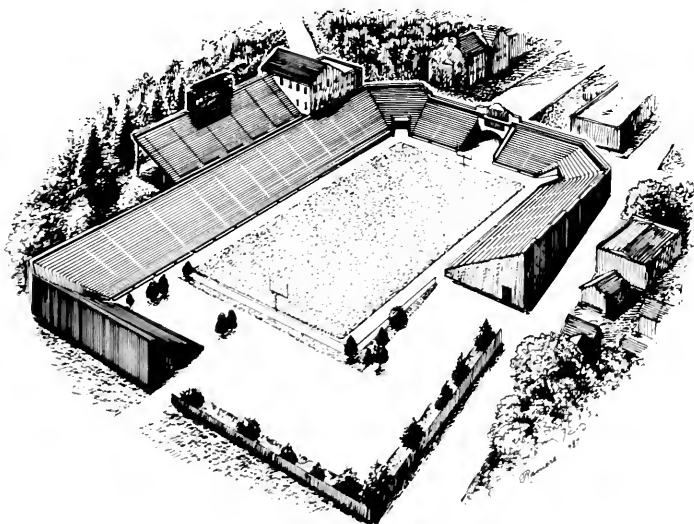

This past year saw an end to one of the nation's oldest stadiums and the beginning of a new facility which should prove to be a first class addition to Lehigh's extensive complex of athletic facilities at the 500-acre Murray H. Goodman Campus.

After 74 seasons, Lehigh played its final game in Taylor Stadium this past fall when the Engineers met the Leopards at the 123rd Lehigh-Lafayette confrontation. Taylor Stadium, which had been one of the best places to watch college football, is being replaced to allow a new business center and a performing arts facility to be built on lower campus.

Although we look forward to the new complex, the story of Taylor Stadium contains a lot of history. It is the saga of the great players and coaches who have led Lehigh teams to 446 gridiron victories, the eighth-highest total among the nation's 80-odd Division I-AA teams.

The stadium was officially dedicated October 17th, 1914, and the Engineers lost no time in establishing a "home field advantage" at the new facility, winning the dedication-day game, 24-20 over Carnegie Tech.

Among Lehigh's biggest wins ever at Taylor or anywhere else, was a 78-0 thrashing of Lafayette in 1917. This still stands as the largest margin of victory for the Engineers over the Leopards in the 123-game history of the most-played rivalry in college football.

Taylor Stadium

Lehigh scored another devastating win, 48-0, at Taylor over the archrivals from Easton in 1935.

With Bill Leckonby's guidance, the Engineers forged a perfect 9-0 record in 1950 and reached milestone victory No. 300 over Gettysburg (26-7) on opening day of the 1956 campaign. Lehigh won more games under Leckonby than under any other coach; upon his retirement in 1961 his record was 85-53-5.

The 1971 season, the first winning campaign in a decade (8-3), was one of record-setting performances. Senior fullback Jack Rizzo gained 313 yards and scored four touchdowns to lead Lehigh to a 48-19 victory over Lafayette at Taylor. The game capped a great year for Rizzo, who rushed for 1143 yards and 19 touchdowns, and scoring 21 total TD's and 129 points, all still Lehigh records.

Lehigh won the NCAA Division II national championship in 1977 under Coach John Whitehead, capturing all six home games, including milestone victory No. 400 over C.W. Post. Whitehead was Lehigh's "winningest coach," with 75 victories in 10 seasons.

A new era began in 1986 with Hank Small as the new head coach and will continue as the tradition is passed over the mountain to the new Murray H. Goodman Stadium.

A football was ceremoniously passed from Taylor Stadium along a three mile route through Lower Campus, the Hill and the Mountaintop Campus to the site of the new stadium. In its dramatic location near the almost completed missing link of Interstate 78 Lehigh's new stadium will serve as a symbol of the university's unflagging commitment to intercollegiate athletics and to quality and excellence in all areas of endeavor.

Targeted to open for the 1988 season, the Murray H. Goodman Stadium will be built in a natural bowl in Saucon Valley adjacent to the Stabler Athletic and Convocation Center, Philip Rauch Field House, and the Robert A. Kaufman Fields.

Serving as a backdrop to the oval-shaped facility will be South Mountain, ablaze with the colors of autumn foliage. The entire setting promises to be one of the most spectacular of any stadium anywhere.

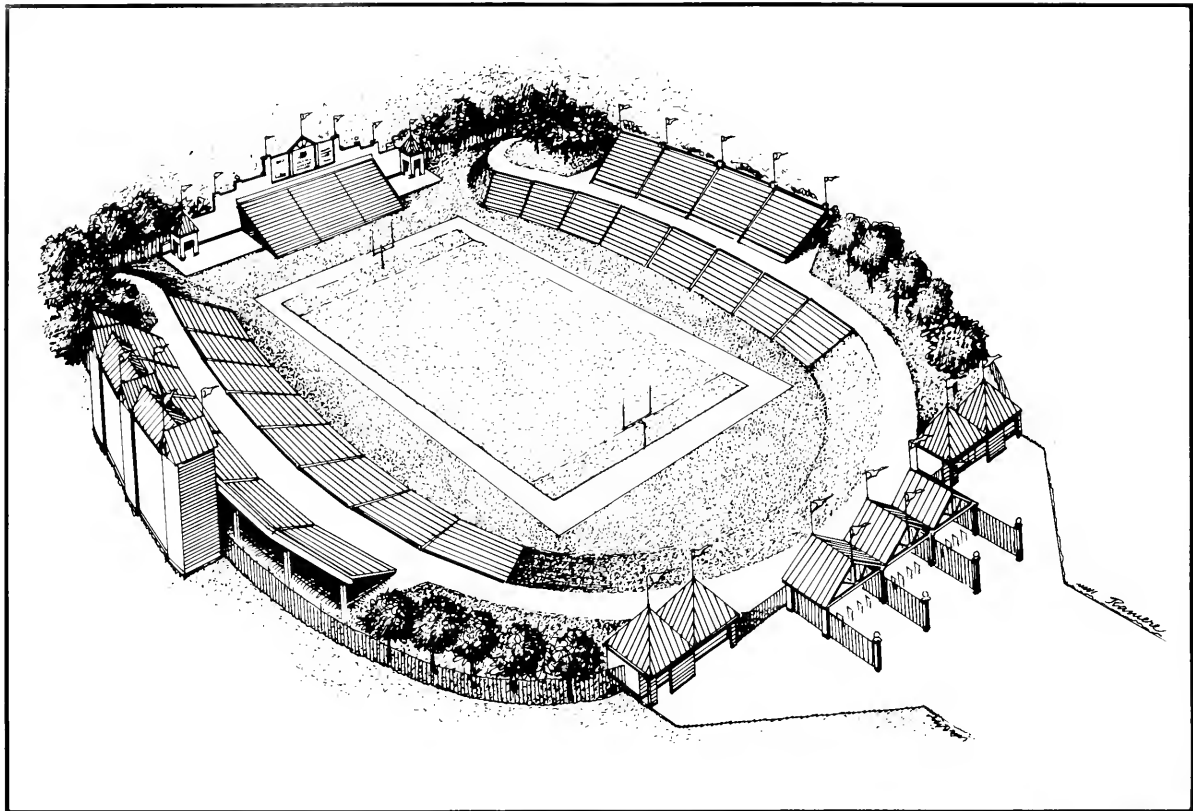

The stadium's design will provide seating for 12,400 spectators however additions are planned to bring the stadium's seating capacity up to 20,000 in the future.

The stadium's entrance will be at its south end, the end nearest Goodman Drive, the main artery of the Goodman Campus. Walkways will lead from an open plaza to the grandstand and fans will descend or ascend to their seats.

Atop the west grandstand will be a two-level structure housing a press box and a complex of "sky boxes." The press box will be configured to provide the best possible working conditions for members of the media in their coverage of Lehigh sports. The facility is designed with special consideration to the needs of television, in order to maximize opportunities for exposure for the University through TV.

A spacious new field house will be located at the north end of the stadium. The facility will provide first-rate accommodations for the home and visiting football squads on game day, and will also serve as headquarters for Lehigh's women's sports programs. Included will be offices, locker-rooms, equipment rooms and an athletic training facility.

Among the advantages offered by the new field house will be a press conference room where members of the media can meet the coaches and the players.

Rauch Business Center

The model pictured is only a preliminary model. The actual building plan is being revised and the structure may look quite different than what is pictured.

Five million dollars were donated by Philip Rauch, Class of '33, for the construction of a new building for Lehigh's College of Business and Economics. The structure will be situated on the site of the former Taylor Stadium.

This new facility will be named the Rauch Business Center in honor of Rauch, and is expected to be completed in the fall of 1990. It will serve as the new headquarters for Lehigh's business college, taking the place of Drown Memorial Hall.

Richard Barseness, dean of the College of Business and Economics, has called Rauch's gift "a major step toward meeting the growing needs of our college. Our business programs are gaining national recognition in many areas, and this building will provide an appropriate home and tangible image for our well-earned identity."

The site for the new building was chosen by a space-planning committee after subjectively weighing all of the possible sites. Drown is full of faculty offices, but there are virtually "no classrooms left," according to Barseness.

The Rauch Business Center will allow all of the faculty of the college and classrooms for most business courses to be together in one place. The new complex will cover 105,000 square feet of space. The executive tower will hold administrative and faculty offices, and the four-story middle section will have high quality classroom space and academie centers.

The other end of the complex will be the home of the executive development section, where there will be for the first time "Professional Education Programs" for professional managers in areas such as tax services. This section will "allow for greater communication among faculty, students, and business professionals," Barseness said, providing Lehigh with improved programs, which "every university ought to have."

Rauch's gift will help to cover the $15.5 million cost of tearing down Taylor Stadium and constructing the new business center. There are also future plans to fill the six-and-a-half acre space with a performing arts center and multi-level parking facilities.

Rauch's name already appears on the Philip Rauch Field House and the Rauch Center for Business Communications. He is director and retired chairman of the Board of Parker Hamilton Corporation of Cleveland, Ohio, as well as the chairman of the board of the Eye Institute in Boston, Massachusetts, the nation's largest research laboratory concerned with the study of the eye and sight-threatening diseases.

Lehigh's proposed performing arts center may also be situated on the site of the former Taylor Stadium. The center is undergoing serious planning, although final plans are not yet definite, according to Augustine Ripa, Jr., head of the speech and theater department. Plans for the proposed center include lab and office space for the music and theater departments. Currently these departments utilize rooms in several buildings including Chandler-Ullmann and Lamberton Halls.

The plans also allow space for two full theaters. One theater would seat between 800-1,000 and a smaller theater approximately 300. The larger theater would be acoustically suitable for music events.

In addition to the theaters, there will probably be an art exposition area. "The entire departments of music and theater would be relocated into the building instead of being all spread out as they are currently," Ripa said. "It would not be simply a lab space for arts students. It would enhance the perception of Lehigh as an institution. The administration is very serious and serious planning has been undertaken."

A theatrical consultant was hired more than a year ago to program the internal needs of the building—"A design for the guts—from the inside out," said Ripa. An architect will be shortly recommended for the structure, and the board of trustees has named a leader of the fund-raising campaign that will start when the project has begun. This represents very serious planning in key areas.

Mountain Top Campus

The Mountaintop Campus was officially opened in a traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony attended by Pennsylvania Governor Robert Casey, Lehigh President Peter Likins, the mayors of Bethlehem and Hellertown, and Representative Don Ritter.

Lehigh acquired the mountaintop campus in December, 1986, from Bethlehem Steel Corporation for $18.75 million. The 742-acre addition nearly doubled the total property owned by Lehigh to 1,600 acres. The complex includes five research buildings, which presently house the ATLSS center, a bioprocesses lab, the College of Education, the chemical engineering department, the Iacocca Institute, and the Ben Franklin Technical Center.

The ATLSS, or Advanced Technology for Large Structural Systems will be a superstructure designed for various testings. It will be the largest such facility in the world, being so big that two stories of a skyscraper could be constructed and tested within ATLSS's walls.

The Pennsylvania government provided $10 million in grants to help with the cost of purchase of the property. In addition, the state annually allocates money to Lehigh through the Ben Franklin Partnership to allow for research projects designed to benefit Pennsylvania's economy through the commercialization of advanced technologies.

This most recent land acquisition will probably be the last major expansion for Lehigh, although further development will occur within the 1,600 acres. Constant academic, physical and fiscal needs will call for perpetual planning and improvement.

A fond farewell to the Class of '88:

The years roll by with increasing speed, as you will fully appreciate only when you pick up this Epitome twenty years later.

You came to Lehigh only yesterday, it seems, when you were very, very young. Yet you are gone today, and suddenly much older and wiser ... not yet old, but old enough ... not yet wise, but wise enough to understand the challenges that await you, and both smart enough and tough enough to handle the task.

Gradually you will understand what happened to you at Lehigh, and realize that with the benefit of the Lehigh experience you carry also a responsibility. You probably already realize that your share of the Lehigh legacy enables you to do well by the conventional American standards of these times. It takes a bit longer to realize that the Lehigh legacy also requires that you do good for others in the global family. When you return to Lehigh as increasingly successful alumnae and alumni, I'll expect to hear how you have continued the tradition of doing well while doing good.

Air Force ROTC

Air Force ROTC Detachment 715 is housed in Grace Hall together with an Army ROTC unit. Within the university, the Department of Aerospace Studies is a separate academic department organizationally under the supervision of the University Provost who serves as military coordinator.

The enrollment in AFROTC for the 1987-1988 academic year totalled 100 cadets with 63 students in the program on AFROTC scholarships. Cadets major in virtually every curriculum, but the majority are engineering majors. Women comprise approximately 14 percent of the cadet corps and minorities make up approximately 3 percent of the corps.

Each academic year the cadet corps is involved in many projects. In the Fall, receptions are held for both Parents Weekends. With November comes the annual AFROTC Veteran's Day Flag Raising Ceremony at the University Center flagpole. The December Dining-In and the April Dining-Out are major events where the entire cadet corps gathers for a formal banquet in the best of the military tradition. Late in March, selected cadets serve as judges for several Air Force awards at the Reading Pennsylvania Science and Engineering Fair.

This past year the cadets held their Second Annual Run For Freedom to remember American POW/MIAs. Open to all members of the university and to the local community, over 75 runners covered the 2 1/4 mile course throughout the 24-hour run. Each runner carried a POW/MIA flag in honor of the over 2400 missing Americans. The corps is proud to have established this annual event at Lehigh and to keep alive the memory of those still missing.

The corps has been changing since the conclusion of the past academic year. Physical fitness programs are fully integrated into the cadets' schedules and the corps has tackled Leadership Laboratory with a renewed enthusiasm. Communication and cooperation with the Army ROTC unit is more extensive than before. Standards of appearance, bearing, and performance of duties continue to follow a rising trend. These elevated standards have resulted in a steady rise in quality, performance and esprit de corps.

The Military Science Department conducts the Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps program at Lehigh University. The Army ROTC program, which was established at Lehigh in 1919, offers a means for students to receive commissions as officers in the United States Army. The ROTC program, established across the country, was begun in large part as a result of the efforts of Lehigh President Henry Drinker. Following a proud tradition, the program at Lehigh includes over 200 students and commissions about 30 officers each year. In 1987-88 over 60 students were completing their studies with Army ROTC full scholarships. The department is dedicated to train the highest quality officers from a body of the highest quality students.

The class of '91 served us a bumper crop of students filling courses. Lucy Gans ascended "the peacock throne" as we lovingly call the chair of the department. Prof. Nick Adams on a Prix de Rome is comfortably ensconced on the Gianiculum Hill at the Rome Academy working on arcane matters of Renaissance fortifications. We have the market cornered on the Yugoslav connection with Ivan Zaknic and Drzen Cackovic teaching lively courses in architecture with charming Serbo-Croatian accents. Ricardo Viera launched the exhibition year with a humongous show of international artists proclaiming their opposition to Apartheid, a blockbuster, overflowing the Ralph Wilson galleries to the lobby at Mountaintop's Building A. (Catchy name isn't it?) Lucy was happy as a clam when a load of walnut logs got delivered to her ground floor digs at Chandler where the chisels and mallets will soon be ringing in the creation of new sculpture. Dick Redd up on the 3rd floor inked up as usual pulling collagraphs off the press in the print studio. Down the hall Tun Akiner is glued to his computer screen. We'd like to tell you what's on the screen but we won't be CADs. This was a year when adjuncts gave extra dimension to curriculum in the presence of Chris Ussler-Trumbull, Andrew Morrogh, Pat Badt, Janet Smith, Lyle Light, Dan Brewer and of course Larry Fink, world class photographer. Art and architecture are flourishing in the once chemically aromatic halls of Chandler-Ullmann. Who needs Mountaintop palaces? Not us!

"Small classes, quality teaching, and significant opportunities for research" are, according to a 1987 report sponsored by the National Science Foundation, the essential ingredients for successful education in biology. The Department of Biology has supplemented this formula with additional equipment and impressive amounts of sophisticated research instrumentation, extensive renovations of laboratories, and expansion to the Mountaintop Campus. The sum has been excellent educational opportunities for gifted students.

The Department of Chemistry, now with twenty-six faculty (and two active emeritus professors), welcomed Dr. Leonard Klebanoff to its ranks as an assistant professor specializing in surface science. A number of important changes are underway. The department along with physics has joined the College of Arts and Science and curricular revisions are being considered in light of this move. The creation of the Mountaintop Campus will affect chemistry as well with the Biochemistry Division and the Emulsion Polymers Institute both anticipating a move to the tower building this summer. Only the biochemistry laboratory courses, Chem 377, 378 will be taught at the mountaintop so faculty will be regular customer on the shuttle run. The graduating seniors, chemistry (7) and biochemistry (8) majors, have been an awesome group that has been a pleasure to have as students. Hardened as they have been in the refining fires of their favorite chemistry courses, we know that they are going to be even more awesome in the future. Let us know how life goes.

The Classics department is proud to have Dr. David Small as visiting lecturer in archeology this year. Dr. Small is about to publish a book entitled Archeological Approaches to Classical Architecture, and has organized a series of talks on archeological topics, which nicely complements the department's ongoing colloquium series.

The other individuals in the department have been busy as well: Professor Phillips took a semester's leave to work on a book on Roman religion, Professor Richlin was awarded a year-long National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship to finish a book on Roman witches, and Professor Williams is working on a cognitive approach to Homer's use of language. Professor Williams also co-directed a production of Plautus's Casina in Latin and English.

The Geology Department has undergone a host of changes in the past few years. Since 1986 the department has hired three new faculty members. Dave Anastasio arrived in the fall of 1986 filling the department's structural geology position. The following semester Carl Moses arrived filling a new position in the field of aqueous geochemistry. In addition, Peter Zeitler, an isotopic geochronologist, is scheduled to arrive in the spring of 1988 to fill the vacancy left by Professor Jim Parks who retired after twenty years of service to the department.

The Geology Department has recently seen the establishment of several traditions. The department began sponsoring an annual spring field trip, traveling to the highlands of northwest Scotland in 1986 and to the southern Appalachians in 1987. For the third consecutive summer, a six credit introductory geology course was taught entirely in the field along with Lehigh's field camp. Closer to home, the department established the Friday afternoon seminar series where once a year each graduate student and faculty member informally presents ongoing research.

The Physics Department is located in the recently completed Fairchild Center for the Physical Sciences. This complex includes the Sherman Fairchild Laboratory for Solid-State Studies, the renovated five story Physics Building, and a major wing which connects these two buildings and houses research and teaching space.

The faculty consists of 19 full-time professors and there are currently 54 full time graduate students and about 35 undergraduate physics majors. The department also services about 1000 additional students each year in its introductory physics courses.

The faculty, graduate students, undergraduate physics majors are engaged in research in the following areas: Solid-state physics (experimental and theoretical), Atomic physics, Plasma spectroscopy, Nuclear theory, Physics of fluids, Statistical physics (experimental and theoretical), Elementary particles (experimental and theoretical), Non-linear optics and Van de Graaf studies.

The department recently moved from the Engineering College to the College of Arts and Science. The department offers the following degrees: B.S. in Engineering Physics, B.A. in Physics, and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees.

Urban Studies Program

Urban

Urban Studies is not a major for faint-hearted collegians interested in shallow acquaintance with the latest "urban crisis" discovered by the breathless media. We seek to impact a careful analytical grasp of the patterns of life in large human settlements. In the process, we try our best to deliver the classic benefits of a liberal arts education, helping our students to reason more clearly, search more diligently for the truth, and argue more effectively. We combine many disciplines; an Urban Studies major takes courses with economists, architects, historians, anthropologists, political scientists, and perhaps even a geologist. Consequently, ours is a major readily combined with a second ("double") major, most commonly in Architecture, Economics, or Government.

Most of our graduates have entered the business world, which suits us fine.

We think the sort of broad-language liberal education we offer is the best possible preparation for the adventures of the marketplace. Law is the second most popular career choice among Urban Studies majors. Others go into real estate, banking, public service (planning and city management), medicine, and architecture.

We are a small operation and students get to know us well. Several courses include field trips to Philadelphia or New York, and some students choose to spend internship semesters in Philadelphia or Washington for major credit. We are working on a revised curriculum which will greatly simplify the dauntingly complex description of the major found in the catalog. Our philosophy? You spend $15,000 a year to improve your mind and your chances in life. We aim to help our students do both.

Department Of Finance

The subject of finance is concerned with the transfer of funds from savers to users and the allocation of funds within an enterprise among competing demands for the funds. Attention is also focused on the institutions and instruments necessary to facilitate this transfer of funds. Hence, the Department of Finance offers courses and undertakes research in the areas of Business Finance, Investments, Security Analysis, Portfolio Management, Financial Flows and Markets, Bank Management, Financial Futures and Options, and International Financial Management. In this way it has been able to prepare students for attractive careers in the finance function of industrial firms, brokerage houses, banks and other financial intermediaries, investment banking, financial analysis, institutional investors, and national and international capital markets.

The Finance Department welcomes a new faculty member this year with the arrival of Phil Sisneros. Undergraduate enrollment in finance continues to rise, setting a record for the third consecutive year. With over 180 majors, finance is the most popular major in the Lehigh Class of 1988.

who specializes in corporate and commercial law; and Perry Zirkel, who specializes in labor and education law. Brockway and Zirkel are senior faculty, both of whom are at the distinguished level of "university professor." Achebe and Nation are assistant professors, who add breadth and growth to the teaching, research, and service activities of the department.

The department provides a range of courses, from the popular university-wide offering in Introduction to Law to advanced graduate-level courses in Tax Law.

In the research area, the faculty continue to increase their production of publications in national journals.

This is the last year in which the Department of Chemical Engineering will be housed primarily in Whitaker Laboratory. Whitaker was built in 1962-65 to meet the needs of the Chemical Engineering and the Metallurgical Engineering Departments. Since then both departments have grown. In Chemical Engineering the faculty has grown by a factor of three; and the research contracting activity by a factor of ten. Thus, we have outgrown what has been a very convenient and comfortable home.

By the Fall of 1988 most faculty offices and graduate research activities will have moved to Building A of the Mountaintop Campus. Our undergraduate laboratory will remain in Whitaker, and we will retain a few faculty offices there to facilitate contact with our undergraduate students. Classes for undergraduates will be taught on the lower campus.

As we consider how best to serve our undergraduates from the Mountaintop site, there are several possibilities. First, we will be using the Computer Network and the excellent Mountaintop Bus Service. Second, we expect our students to do likewise. We will have fine student spaces for meetings and study, an excellent library tailored to our needs, and a quality cafeteria at hand. 300-level classes may be meeting in Building A. Seminars and meetings will routinely be held on the Mountaintop. Finally, we expect that classes and activities for undergraduates will follow us to the top of the mountain. Initially, there will be a few classes in chemistry, biology and chemical engineering. Later, we will move our undergraduate laboratory, abandon our remaining offices in Whitaker, and hold all of our activities on the new campus.

This year has been one of transition, change, and excitement for the Department of Materials Science and Engineering. On July 1, 1987, the past chairman of the department, Professor David A. Thomas, became the Dean of Graduate Studies at Lehigh and Professor Richard W. Hertzberg became the new chairman of the department. However, Professor Hertzberg was on sabbatical leave for the 1987-1988 academic year so Professor S. Kenneth Tarby served as acting chairman. Professor Tarby will become Associate Chairman of the department upon Professor Hertzberg's return in July, 1988.

A number of faculty were on leave this year doing a variety of things in many different places. Professor Hertzberg has been working and lecturing in Switzerland, England, Australia, and China. Professor Alan W. Pense, Associate Dean of the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences and a member of this department, has been visiting professor this year in Lousanne, Switzerland. Professor Martin P. Harmer was on sabbatical in Melbourne, Australia. We also want to note the return of Professor Helen Chan this past spring from her leave of absence at the National Bureau of Standards in Maryland.

On the research front there are some very exciting developments which have taken place. The ceramics program continues to grow and mature. The new involvement of our faculty in this group has been in the area of superconductivity. Lehigh researchers have duplicated a ceramic compound which is a superconducting material at 92 degrees K. The compound is composed of yttrium, barium, copper, and oxygen. Professors Donald M. Smyth and Martin P. Harmer, along with Professor Himanshu Jain, have created a consortium of industrial and government organizations to study superconducting materials. Another exciting development withing the department has been the addition of an extremely powerful $1.3-million Philips EM430 advanced analytical electron microscope. Professors David. B. Williams, Charles E. Lyman, Joseph I. Goldstein, and Martin P. Harmer are responsible for obtaining this important research equipment.

At the undergraduate level, this has been a good year for our students in receiving scholarships in recognition of high scholastic achievements. Terry Hahn ('88) received an ASM International scholarship, one of 32 awarded nationally. James Heilman ('88) has won the Alcoa scholarship and a scholarship from the Lehigh Valley Chapter of ASM International. Carpenter Technology Scholarships have also been awarded to Terry Hahn ('88), Gary Chin ('88), John Slanski ('88), Ann Bolcavage ('89), and Sarah Hayward ('89). An innovative approach to teaching our introductory materials course (Mat. 63) was launched in the spring semester. A new materials course for freshmen is planned for next year.

The Lehigh Ranger Company

The Lehigh RANGERS is a military organization which offers interested students a chance to take part in challenging physical activities. The club teaches advanced military skills, rapelling, and military patrol techniques, as well as sponsors outdoor activities. They conducted two white-water raft trips this year, and an Appalachian trail hike. Lehigh Outing Club

The Lehigh Outing Club is a student-run organization that participates in just about anything that has to do with the outdoors. The main purpose of the Outing Club is to provide students with exciting and unusual activities that relieve the monotony and pressure of their everyday academic life. Although these activities include skydiving, whitewater rafting, rockclimbing, and Hot Pursuit, and as such have certain intrinsic dangers involved, safety is stressed and all of the activities are supervised by experienced professionals. Out activities also include hiking, camping, and canoeing for those who like to get close to the outdoors but don't want to hurl themselves from an airplane while doing so.

The Outing Club's activities are available to anyone in the Lehigh University family; faculty, staff, and students can all participate. We also make available equipment that can be borrowed for individual use.

To become a member in the Lehigh

Outing Club is very simple — simply participate in an activity and you are "in." The activities are made available at lowered "student" rates. In this way, the Outing Club provides forms of recreation that are different, safe, inexpensive, and fun.

Equestrian Club

Originally founded as an equine interest club, the Equestrian Club has long since become a much more collegiate organization. The renewed interest of the Lehigh Valley's equestrian farms and stables has led to a continuing increase in membership and involvement.

The club's original intent to sponsor activities and schedule lessons for all levels of riders has been maintained. In addition, the club's members are dedicated to working at horse shows benefiting physically handicapped children in the Lehigh Valley. The most outstanding achievement of the club, however, has been the Equestrian Team. Over the past few years, the team has acquitted itself admirably in intercollegiate horse shows against varsity teams from many universities. With continued growth, the team will undoubtedly reach a high level of achievement.

International Club

The International Club, one of the largest on the Lehigh campus, is an association that aims to present the world's variety of cultures to the Lehigh campus. The club, which has American as well as international members, organizes a series of events to introduce people to the home cultures of our international students. This year's highlight is the International Dinner, in which many of our members cook authentic national dishes and present cultural performances. Other events staged included a ski trip to the Pocos, two "World Cup" soccer tournaments, and a festival of foreign films.

The International Club also acts as a forum for the concerns of international students. To this end, we have increased contact with the international associations of other east coast universities to discuss issues of common concern to foreign students and to devise new ways in which Lehigh can help its own international students.

LU Volunteers

LUV — Lehigh University Volunteers — is a student service organization that benefits the Lehigh Valley. Our members participate in many activities throughout the semester which help the needy of our community. Some examples of our involvement include visiting a local nursing home, tutoring in a local elementary school, and being big brothers/big sisters for local children. We also hold fund raisers throughout the year to benefit such organizations as the United Way, the Red Cross, Oxfam, and the American Cancer Society.

Many exciting events took place in the Marching 97's historical 1987 season. This was, in fact, the final chance for the band to march in Taylor Stadium. As a result, the band's usual enthusiastic spirit was amplified, as they attended nearly every football game, both the Hellertown and Bethlehem Halloween parades, and the "Passing the Tradition" ceremony for the new stadium in Saucon Valley.

This year's Alumni Band weekend was an historical event in itself. The halftime show provided a glimpse into years past, as the Alumni Band performed a re-creation of the first halftime show in Taylor Stadium, which took place in 1914. At the end of the show, the old and new bands combined to create the longest "Marching Lehigh" formation ever. Approximately 150 bandsmen were on the field!

Led by a student executive committee of nine people, members of the band were responsible for everything from writing the shows to conducting field rehearsals, and playing in the stands. Due to the great amount of work provided by all, this year's season was a great success. Thanks must be given to each individual member, because it couldn't have been done without you!

Another school year has come and gone, and once again, another Epitome has somewhat miraculously been produced. Out of a cubicle of an office, located in the bowels of the UC, this book came together with much dedication, care, and none too few headaches by everyone involved. The end result, we are proud to say, successfully continues Lehigh's tradition of producing excellent and all-round crowd-pleasing yearbooks.

Under the friendly rule of Lehigh's resident evil dictator, J. P. DeVito, the editors sweated, cried, swore, partied, ate, wrote, typed, photographed, smoked, and screamed ourselves to near insanity, all in the name of our cherished yearbook that no one has the decency to pronounce correctly. (That's ē-pit-ō-mē for those still not quite sure how to say it.)

Unfortunately, we can't always laugh, as we realize that our senior friends will soon be thrust into "The Real World" and we will be left to survive without them. The Class of 1988 takes with it some of our finest editors, without whom this book would never have been completed on time, and would never have turned out as beautifully as it has.

First, a fond farewell and good luck to our money-makers — Ilze Gobins and Shari Yohanan, and the head business honcho herself, Lisa Dubinsky. While balancing the books with academics, they managed to raise more money than The Epitome has ever seen. Another woman we must reluctantly say good-bye to is Jacqui Jennings, who miraculously completed the entire sports section on her own, with absolutely no help from the audience. All this, and an industrial engineer besides! (I hope she finds a job.) Finally, good luck to our last woman of the '80's, Mary Ellen Maher, who wrote most of the feature articles scattered within these hallowed covers.

The list of good-byes does not end here, as we turn to The Epitome's token males and wave farewell. Editor-in-chief Joe DeVito, though known by many other names in many other contexts, can never be called lazy, disorganized, or impatient. His sense of humor and ability to take a lot of pain (headaches, that is) successfully carried his sanity, the book, and the rest of the crew to the promised land (better known as the end of school). Finally, believe it or not, the "Photo God" himself, Bill Wilson, is graduating at last! After five years of bliss, and earning the prestigious title of Super Senior, Bill has decided that maybe it is time for him to leave and find a life beyond shooting photos for The Epitome. It is unquestionably our loss because not only will we be losing his humor, charm, and downright gift for taking pictures, but he's taking his cameras with him as well! Want to leave us just one, Bill? We promise to include it, along with your desk, in the shrine we are building in your memory.

All in all, it has been a great year, both in and out of the office, and we hope that you are as pleased with this final product as we are proud of it.

The 1987 Lehigh Football season will be remembered as the one that could have been great but ended only mediocre. Only nine points separated this year's Brown and White team from going down in Lehigh's football history as one of the best. With a few breaks here or there, the Engineers could have posted a 10-1 record; instead, last second field goals and touchdowns by opponents made Lehigh settle for another average season (5-5-1).

The Engineers opened the '87 season with a high scoring victory over Colonial League opponent, Davidson, 47-0. This victory was highlighted by four Lee Blum touchdowns and a superior all-around defensive effort. Jim Watson, a freshman wide receiver made his first appearance in a Lehigh uniform a memorable one as he hauled in two touchdowns receptions. It gave a great start to Taylor Stadium's 74th and final season.

The second game of the season will be remembered by those associated with Lehigh football as one of the greatest wins ever. Lehigh handily defeated the Naval Academy, 24-9, before a sellout crowd at their homecoming. Junior receiver, John Gorman, caught two touchdowns passes in the contest, one from junior quarterback, Mark McGowan in the first quarter and one from Lee Blum in the second quarter on a halfback option pass. McGowan completed 17 of 25 passes for 195 yards and one touchdown while Blum rushed 126 yards on 25 carries. Senior co-captain and line-backer, Kevin Rife and senior defensive back Clifton Hubbard led the tenacious defensive attack. This was the first time we beat Navy in 75 years.

Suddenly, Lehigh was off to its fastest start in years. Lehigh was (2-0) and tied for first place in the Colonial League going into its third game against Holy Cross. Unfortunately neither the offense nor the defense showed up ready to play. As a result, Lehigh suffered an embarrassing 63-6 defeat.

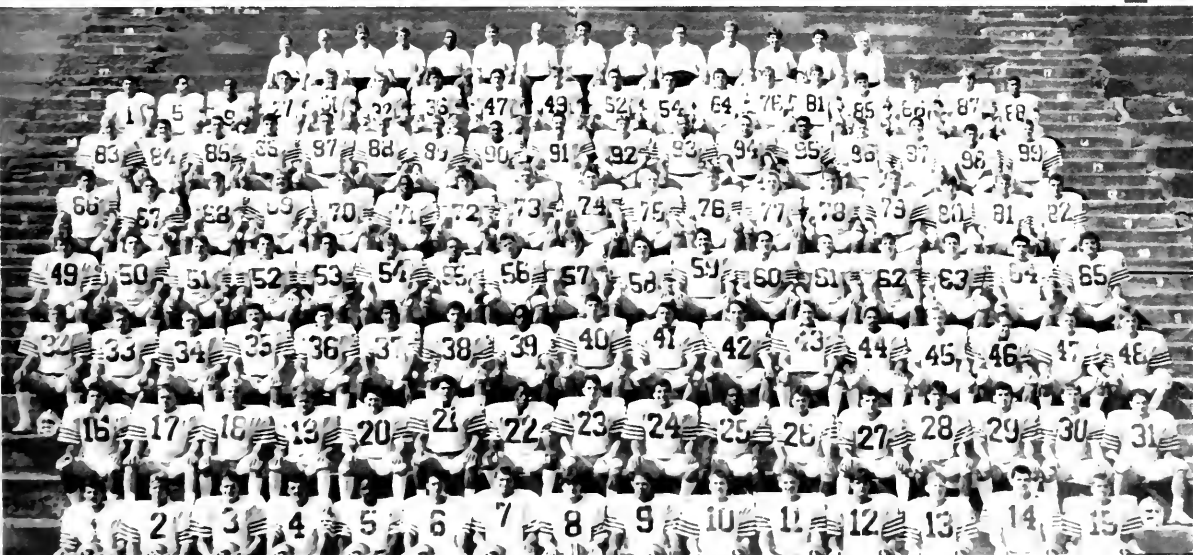

The following week, the gridders slipped once again by losing a barnburner 28-27 against William and Mary. Freak plays and overall bad luck doomed Lehigh in this game, as they dominated the tribe of William and Mary in every aspect of the game except the score. The offense had its most productive day of the season, as it amassed over 500 yards of total offense. This defeat set Lehigh back to a 2-2 record and unfortunately, proved to be a more frustrating loss than the Holy Cross thrashing.

Lehigh faced yet another tough opponent next . . . Colgate. Even after suffering two devastating defeats back to back, the Engineers were able to regroup and bounce back to defeat the Red Raiders 7-6 at Colgate. This victory was accomplished by a phenomenal defensive effort on Lehigh's part. The only scoring that Lehigh could manage was a twelve yard pass to junior fullback Rich Curtis. Jeff Bronico, Chris Hite, Don Ferrell, Greg Wolfson, and Rife all had an outstanding defensive game. Lehigh improved its record to 3-2 and maintained its second place standing in the Colonial League. The only disappointment in the game was that Pete Pawlenko, a major link in the Lehigh defensive line, was lost for the season when he broke his leg. However his efforts in the previous games were enough for him to be honored on the first team Colonial League team.

Lehigh's next game was against Princeton in New Jersey. This was probably the most frustrating loss of the season (16-15), as a last second fieldgoal left Lehigh dumbfounded. The Brown and White squad was heavily favored going into the contest but the offense was unable to put enough points on the board for a victory.

Taylor Stadium was packed for the Delaware game the following week. Crowds came to see one of the greatest rivalries in the east play each other for the last time. Lehigh jumped out to a quick 24-14 lead only to have it narrowed to 24-21 by halftime. McGowan threw for two first half touchdowns, one to Curtis and another to Blum. Blum then added another, along with a field goal from senior Mike Beattie. Finally it looked as if both the Lehigh offense and defense were on the same page . . . However, during the first series on offense, Lehigh's star junior running back, Lee Blum, suffered a season ending knee injury. Before his injury he was the nation's division I-AA leading all purpose yardage gainer. Despite a hard fought second half, especially by the defense, Lehigh could not hold on to their lead as they lost 28-24. Wolfson, Lehigh's junior strong safety played an outstanding game, as he led the defense with 12 tackles.

A high powered passing attack, exceptional running by senior Paul Sims, and a stubborn defensive performance got Lehigh back on track as the Engineers defeated Columbia 26-10. Sims rushed for 153 yards on 21 carries and scored once. McGowan completed 21 of 33 passes for 268 yards and scored twice (one throwing and once rushing) including a 57 yard touchdown pass to Brian Hickman. Seniors, Steve Banco and Mike Burke, led the defensive attack for the game.

Lehigh returned to Taylor Stadium to face Brown University with an even 4-4 record only to lose 10-7 before a Parent's Weekend crowd on yet another last second field goal.

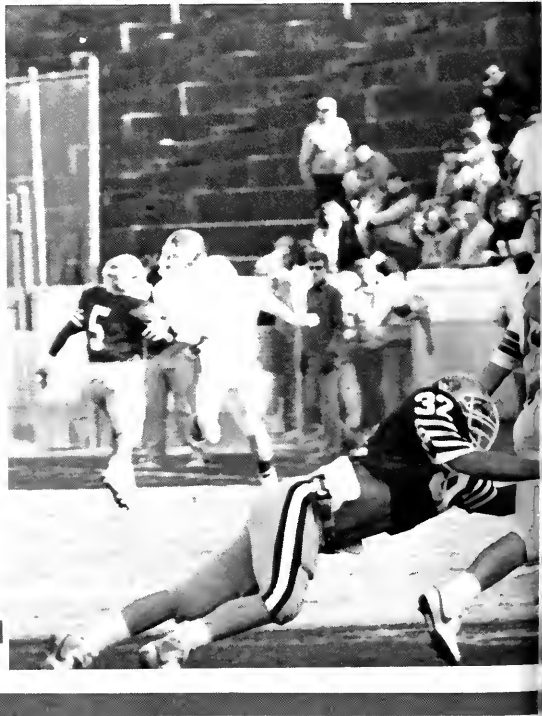

Lehigh traveled to Lewisburg to play the Bucknell Bison's next. Sims and McGowan each rushed for one touchdown and wide receiver Rob Verano caught a 49 yard touchdown pass from McGowan to tie the score at 21 in the fourth quarter. Glen Comisac intercepted a Bucknell go-ahead scoring pass and returned it 78 yards to set up an Engineer score. Neither team could come up with a scoring drive to break the 21-21 tie so that is how the game ended. Wolfson and Rife led the Lehigh defense with 13 and 9 tackles respectively.

The 123rd Lehigh-Lafayette game will be one that will always be remembered for many reasons. First of all, it was the last game that will ever be played in Taylor Stadium. Secondly, it was played on a bitter cold and windy day of 17 degrees. The outcome of the game hopefully broke the fourth quarter jinx that hovered over the Engineers all season long, forever. Lehigh won the game 17-10, evening its record at 5-5-1, but more importantly, clinching second place in the newly formed Colonial League.

Tom Marron caught his first touchdown pass of the season on a fourth and one in the first quarter to get the scoring started. Mike Beattie added a field goal to take a 9-7 halftime lead. In the fourth quarter, Lafayette took the lead 10-9 and the script was written for another frustrating Lehigh loss. However, the Engineers drove over 65 yards to take the lead on a McGowan touchdown with only five minutes remaining. Lehigh went for two points and converted it as Sims caught a swing pass. This closed out the scoring and gave the Engineers a 17-10 victory. Rife, Banco, and Anthony Mirando led the defensive surge as they stuffed the Leopards all day long. Turnovers plagued the Leopards as Wolfson and Banco intercepted Lafayette passes. Rich Curtis led the Lehigh rushing attack and played an over-all outstanding game. McGowan was voted the game's MVP by the media for his performance.

Lehigh will have an experienced squad returning next year and hopes to dominate the Colonial League next year.

Lehigh's soccer team tied the record for Lehigh's highest number of wins and captured the only winning record since 1978. An overall impressive final record of 11-6-1 was dedicated to Jeff Remley, a former Engineer player who died in a car accident the previous summer.

Despite six losses, highlights of the season proved Lehigh to be a championship team. The Brown and White upset Rutgers, who had previously been undefeated and ranked 5th in the nation for NCAA Division I. Tri Captain, Eric Sejourne's shutout for this spectacular game earned him the ECC Player of the Week title.

Tri-captain Eric Frary was also named ECC Player of the Week, when he scored three times against Delaware. Frary played excellently and scored consistently through out the season, again scoring three times in one game, against West Chester. Frary scored 12 goals for 28 points this season. Chris Cameron, Gary Klein, and freshman Henry Cence were all high scorers for the team.

This was tri-captain Pete Martin, Leon Kassabian and Sejourne's last season with the Engineers. Sejourne was a dedicated and powerful defensive player, who made many difficult saves through out the season. He stopped 109 shots for a final save percentage of .838. In 18 games, Sejourne managed seven shutouts.

Although the end was a bit disappointing the team had an excellent season. They had a big win over Moravian (6-0), to win the the Mayor's Trophy and they defeated Rider (1-0) to clinch a spot in the ECC playoffs.

Wrestling

Lehigh's wrestling team finished its dual-meet season with a tough loss to 10th ranked Edinboro, 26-11, dropping its record to 5-11. Despite the teams disappointing record, they went into the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Championships confidently. The Engineers came home from the EIWA's in Syracuse with nine place winners, as well as first place in team standings. Impressively the Engineers had the team title wrapped up even before going into the finals.

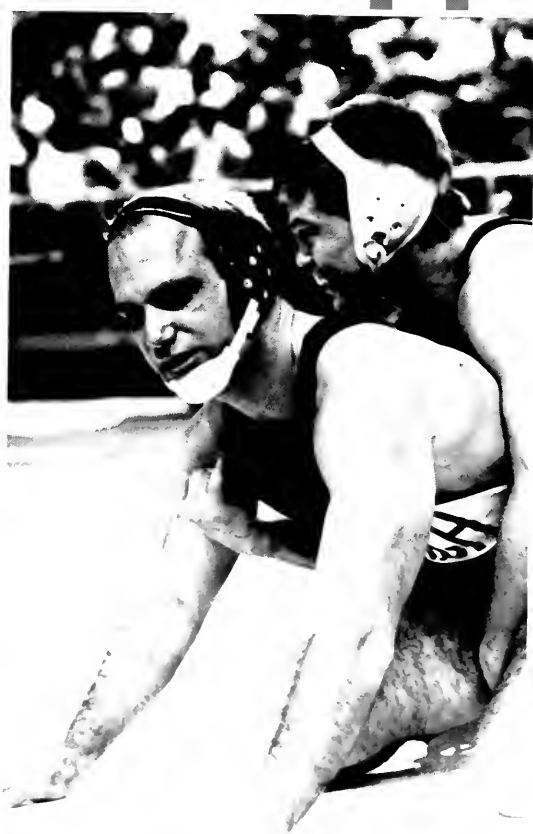

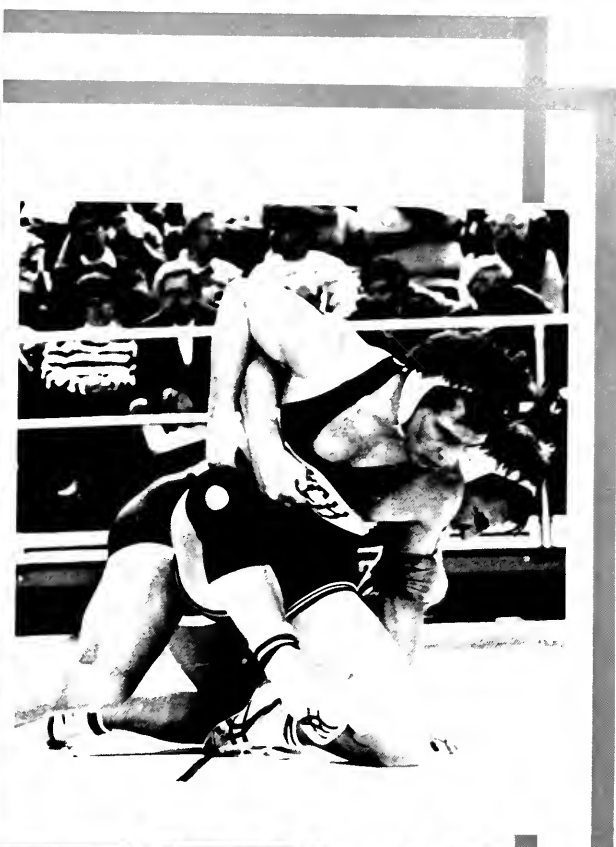

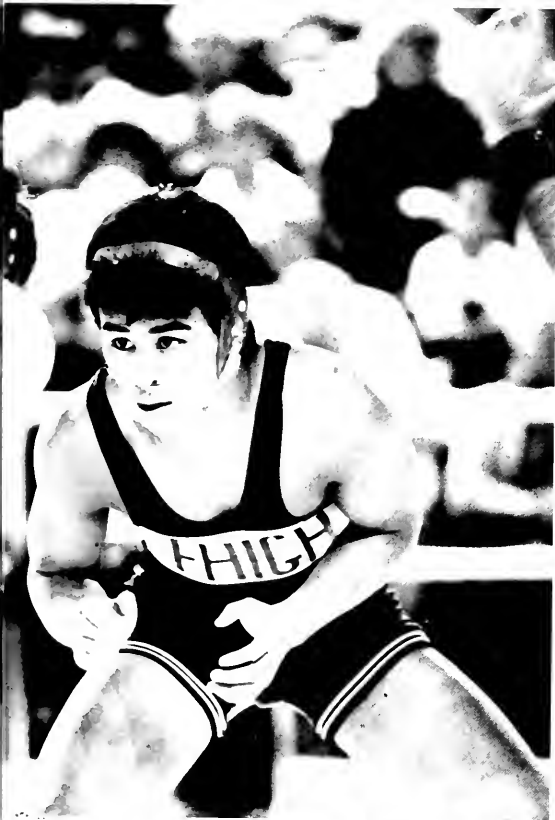

Senior Tom Toggas became the 10th Lehigh wrestler to have won three EIWA crowns, which led to his being awarded the John Fletcher Memorial Trophy. Winning the 177-lb title for the second time was senior co-captain Eyvind Boyesen. Lehigh's sophomore John Epperly soundly beat Paul Kuznik of Army, 11-3, to obtain the 126-lbs title. Other place winners were senior co-captain Jim Frick, who was runner up at 134-lbs and freshman Matt Ruppel, who placed third at 190 lbs. Ruppel was awarded the EIWA Coaches Association's Outstanding Freshman Wrestler Award for his outstanding performance all season. Also placing third for Lehigh was senior Steve Vetsch at unlimited.

On entering the 58th NCAA Wrestling Championship, Lehigh placed one All-American among its six competitors. John Epperly took eighth place at 126 lbs, winning three matches and losing three. Overall the Engineers took 22nd place out of the 63 teams participating.

Men's Basketball

It was an exciting season for Lehigh's basketball team, as the Brown and White earned their second trip to the NCAA tournament. Ending their season with an impressive 21-10 record, the team was 8-6 in the East Coast Conference.

The team started 1988 off with an eight game winning streak, and would later beat Towson State in their last home game of the season. In their first game of the ECC tournament, Lehigh would defeat Bucknell 83-79. The Engineers would next have to face Lafayette to get to the ECC tournament finals. After losing to Lafayette twice during the season, the Brown and White were able to successfully overtake the Leopards in a close match of 67-65. Beating Towson State for the third time, in front of a crowd of 4,271, the Engineers captured the ECC tournament championship. Co-captains Darren Queenan and Mike Polaha were placed in the all-tourney team, while Polaha recieved his second tournament MVP trophy.

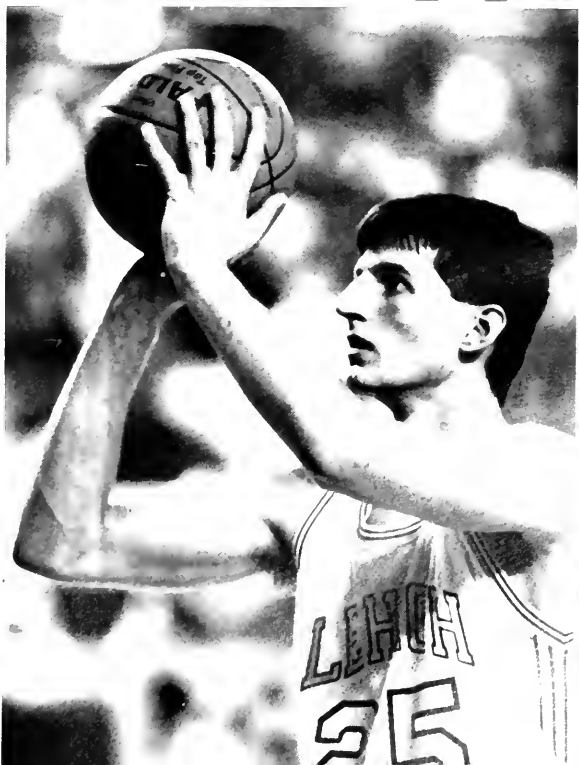

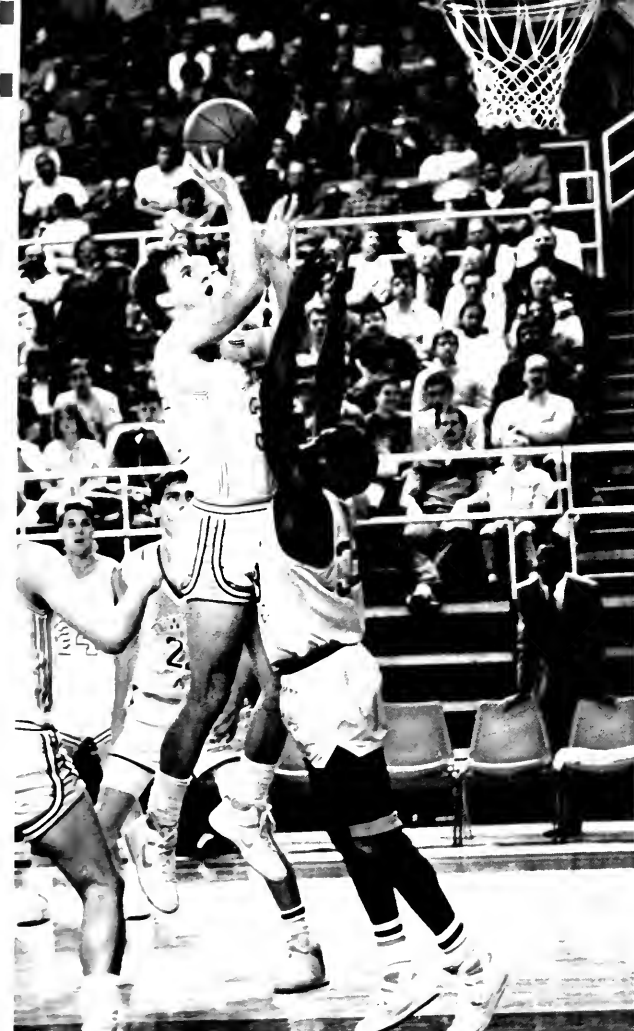

In the first rounds of the NCAA tournament Lehigh, seated only 64th, played Temple University, ranked first in country, at the Hartford Civic Center. Lehigh played an emotional and intense game but came up short against the powerful Temple team, losing 87-73. One of Lehigh's most potent players was sophomore Scott Layer. Untimidated by the Owls, he scored four three-point field goals. Polaha was Lehigh's high scorer with 27 points and 8 rebounds. Queenan and senior, Bill Cheslock both scored many points in the game.

Next years engineers will have a rough season having said farewell to 5 seniors, each who started for the team. Foward Darren Queenan, guard Mike Polaha, guard Bruce Breder, foward Tim Russell and center Bill Cheslock will be graduating and no doubt missed by all those involved in Lehigh basketball. Queenan, the most successful, holds virtually every Lehigh scoring record. He has 2570 points and 977 rebounds in 113 career games. Polaha and Cheslock both scored at least 1000 points each and Russell was also a high scorer with over 500 points. Along with the intense playing of Breder, the five made up a strong and tough to beat squad.

On Campus

Campus life in a dormitory was more than just a place to sleep and study. It was also probably the best place to learn about yourself and others during the daily grind of university living. Each year of living on campus at Lehigh brought greater responsibilities and a widening of interests. Freshman year was a true learning experience in every way. There were so many new things to do and people to meet. For some, the biggest challenge of freshman year was handling the increased amount of responsibility. Of course, we all learned to adjust with the help of our gryphons and hallmates.

In most respects, living on campus gave students the advantage of being in closer contact with the university and the people. We have all experienced the advantages of living on campus including maids, meals, and no bills to pay. Students learn the ins and outs of living with roommates and get much companionship by living with so many people.

After graduation, what you will remember most about the Lehigh lifestyle is the people you met and the memories you created and collected. Living with these people is what made Lehigh the special experience that it was.

Off Campus

The "real" world. That's what many Lehigh students living off-campus get a taste of before they actually jump into it. The switch from dorm life to off-campus housing involves both positive and negative aspects which must be considered before the move is made.

The most positive aspect which influences the move is privacy. Usually a group of four or five students share a 3-story house. The students then get a chance to interact with their housemates and still have the privacy of their own room. The study atmosphere is also a big factor. Most off-campus students decide that a house is much quieter than a dorm hall.

And then there is the aspect of meals. These students have the choice of staying on the meal plan and/or cooking for themselves. They usually choose a combination of the two which gives them a chance to experience buying and cooking some of their own meals while not having to rely on this all the time.

Of course, getting a taste of the "real" world means greater responsibilities. Along with the absence of maids and gryphons, comes a devastating new fill-in: BILLS. It's hard to imagine just how much those gas, electric, and water bills can add up to, but off-campus students quickly learn. The somewhat painful experience of budgeting money, paying all those bills, and maintaining an entire house is slowly gained throughout the semester.

Another aspect which is sometimes a disadvantage is that these students are somewhat separated from the university. Informational notices and party signs posted in most dorms are often unseen by those living off campus.

Yet despite the negative aspects, living off-campus is an overall great learning experience which leaves the students with many good memories and a small but worthwhile taste of the "real" world.

But we never have to drive!!!

Greek Life

Life in a fraternity or sorority is more than just living in a building better than your average dorm where the meals are far superior to that of the U.C. cafeteria. The difference rests in the meaning behind the words "brotherhood" and "sisterhood" which implies a bond of loyalty and friendship between the people with whom you live.

There are parties, clean-ups, pledging, meetings, and many other activities involved in being a part of a fraternity or sorority but more important, there are ties formed that last a lifetime.

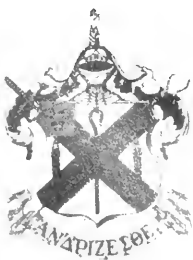

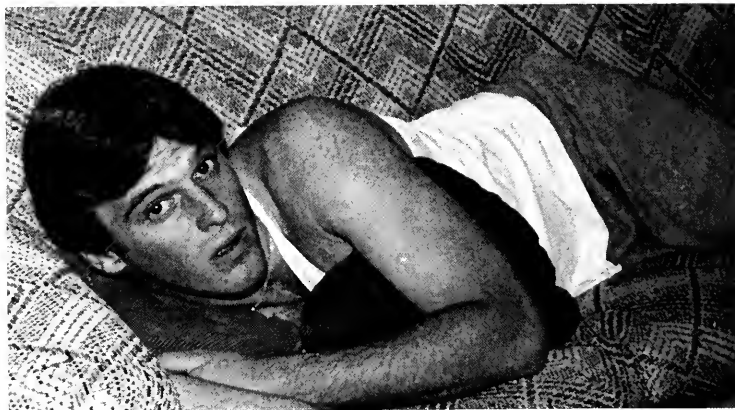

Living in a house adds a new meaning to college life. A person learns responsibilities to himself or herself as well as to all the other members of the house. Living with so many different people from all different backgrounds does not affect the special bond that exists, but enhances it.

Many houses have acquired a certain stereotype and because of this, people will frequent that house more or less. Nevertheless, whether the house fits that stereotype or not, it is trivial to the special tie between the brothers and sisters. The individuality of a person is not hampered by greek life, if anything it is stimulated and thus makes for a more diversified fraternity or sorority.

June Commencement

Commencement speaker: Donald Trump

"I love positive thinking," Donald Trump told 1,126 graduates at the 120th Commencement Exercises held on June 5, 1988, "but it can only get you in trouble to a large extent.

"I believe very strongly in both the power of positive thinking and the power of negative thinking," Trump said. "[But] without negative thinking you are going to get yourselves in trouble. You always want to be optimistic, you always want to be positive. . . [But] you've got to be aware of the downside. You've got to think negative. And when you think negative you have to think in the terms of drugs, because they're out there, and you have to think in terms of alcohol and what it can do to people."

Trump went on to warn the graduates of the many obstacles out there in the 'real world'. "This hasn't been the real world," Trump explained, "this has been a sheltered world. This has been a beautiful world. But the real world is something different.

"Our country is very weak right now. I think our country is not respected, and, in fact, I think it is being laughed at by a lot of the people that we are . . . calling friends," Trump said. "[But] believe it or not, this is a message of hope. You are starting off at what I consider low, but there is a lot of room to move. If you start low you are going to go up."

Trump urged the graduates to "go out, and as Lee Iacocca said . . . 'get angry'. You have to go forward and you have to push — and push hard. But you have to know the negative, and you don't want to push into that negative," Trump said, "You want to stay away from those obstacles."

In Closing

It's hard to believe something when only one person mentions it, but when everyone says it, you can't really deny it. I live for doing yearbook. My roommates say it; my staff says it; all my friends say it. I guess it's true.

I arrived at Lehigh thinking that my high school yearbook days had taught me everything there was to know about putting together a yearbook. I was wrong. I still remember my first Epitome staff meeting: I walked up to the editor (he was a senior) and tried to impress on him my "vast knowledge of yearbook production techniques." I told him outright that I wanted his job someday. I don't think he was really listening to me, but I never forgot that evening.

Well, here I am, editor of The 1988 Epitome. I did what I set out to do, but at the moment I don't even believe my own reasoning as to why I decided to accept this job. It took a lot of hard work by many dedicated people, long hours - sometimes days, quite a few headaches and a feeling of constant frustration to put together this yearbook.

I learned a lot about publishing, and about people. I had to deal with many problems and I was able to overcome most of them with the help of my wonderful staff. But in a few months, after the book is out and received by the community, when the work is all done and I can hold the product in my hand, I'll again understand my reasoning.

A yearbook is the one and only lasting account of our year here. Unlike a newspaper, it will be kept for generations as a reminder of our Lehigh experience. And even after we are only a memory, people will still look at this book to get a feeling of what Lehigh was like in 1988. That's what I tried to express throughout this Epitome. I hope you like what you see.

—Joseph De Vito
Editor-in-Chief
The 1988 Epitome

Colophon

Volume 112 of The Epitome, 1988 edition, the official yearbook of Lehigh University, was printed by Jostens — Printing and Publishing Division, State College, Pennsylvania, using the offset lithography process. The paper used is primarily #80 Gloss with black ink. Color pages used #110 Kromkote paper.

Cover: The cover, made of a Pearl Fabrikoid material with a copper foil logo, was silkscreened with tan and brown paints. A Mission Grain was embossed on the front and back cover. The artwork on the front lid was designed by The Epitome staff and drawn by Jostens.

Headlines and Copy: Optima typeface was used for the majority of the book except for the senior section which used Times Roman (regular, bold and italic). Body copy was set in 10 point while captions were set in 8 point. Headline size varied throughout the book.

Color: All separations were performed using Hell-laser scanners from color prints.

Photographs: Photographs are the work of The Epitome staff photographers. The senior portraits were taken by Merin Studios, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Athletic teams were photographed and supplied courtesy of Ryan Studios, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

Lisa Bolitsky: For some reason the in-coming editor always ends up spending some of their summer at Lehigh working on the book. It's because of you that I got this position and without you I never could have done it. You've been a great friend and were always there when I needed help. I hope you have someone as good as I had to help you next year.

Lisa Dubinsky: I always said it was your job to get me enough money so I could do what I wanted with the book. Well, you did it — with a couple of grand to spare! You saw me in every type of mood and are still my friend. By the way, how many Michael's were there — 3 or 4?

Bill Wilson: As I have said before, I wouldn't want to be the editor without you as my photo editor. You have never received the credit you deserve for all the work you do and I will always remember the great amount of help you have given me. Through it all you have become a great friend.

Professor Gorney: You said at the outset that you wanted to hear from me as often as possible. Well, I think I lived up to that request. Thanks for always making the time to help when we asked and for giving us the freedom to do what we wanted.

Linda Lipko: I could never have done a quarter of what I have without your help. You are as big a part of The 1988 Epitome as any editor. You made it easier to take on the position of editor and made it many times a pleasure.

Shari Yohanan: Your uncanny ability to convince local merchants to advertise in this book was the least of the help you gave me throughout the year. You were a great friend and always willing to come and work with me no matter what section I was doing. Thanks!

Ilie Gobins: It was great having someone around to talk to about home. Thanks for the Ads for Grads idea and all your work — your pet project put us over the top.

Jacqui Jennings: You made one aspect of the yearbook easy on me — I never had to worry about the athletics section. I'm sorry for cutting it down so many times — no one ever told me how long it should be. By the way, are you taking your freshman to Hawaii?

Nancy Howard and Sue Marra: You two took on a big task with very little knowledge and made it work. You are a hard workers and Lisa needs that next year. Good luck. By the way, you are alive, right?

Corey Abate and Beth Cottingham: I thank God the two of you approached me for a job at our first meeting. (Pretty dumb move, wasn't it?) We will always be the "Disciples of Bill Tilly".

Karin Cholack: You were always around to help me no matter what I had to do. Your a great friend and I enjoyed the time we spent together both inside and outside of The Epitome office.

Debbie Davidson: Well Deb, it's up to you to keep the photo department straight next year. Good luck! By the way, do you want to dance?

Phil Klein: I don't know how your family puts up with it: the late night phone calls and constant messages from "Joe at Lehigh." I really appreciate all the time and effort you put forth. You have been a great inspiration and full of ideas when I needed both.

The Whole Merin Crew — Marvin, Steve, Richard and Delores: Lehigh and You — Perfect Together. It can't get much better than this. You all have been a great help for so many years. We owe you our unending gratitude.
